Faculty (Parent) Teacher Qualifications

This document will list your faculty (you, the legal parent or guardian) and your qualifications to teach your child at home. The State of California does not require teachers to be State Certified to teach in a private school. Therefore, listing teaching credentials or college degrees is not mandatory. The Education Code does require that the teacher be “capable to teach” (E.C. 48222).

In preparing a document such as this, you will, once again, clarify your thinking about yourself and what you are doing. Do not be intimidated if you are not a State Certified teacher. Nearly all parents are capable to teach their own children. Be creative, but be honest. Put down any schooling, high school graduation and above. Include your work experience, skills, hobbies, interests, and any personal information that adds to your qualifications to teach such as a love of traveling and adventure, an inquiring mind, or love of reading, etc. Be sure to add workshops attended at CHEA Conventions and other parent education opportunities (this is called In-Service Training). Thinking this through carefully and writing it out will help you verbalize your position should the need ever arise.

VVDCS reserves the right under private school law to enlist volunteer parent teaching staff per the godly standards as a religious school.
